DAIRY

DAIRY COWS FED REGULARLY

Animals Soon Become Accustomed to Routine and Milk Comes More Freely—Keep Barns Clean.

(By T. L. HAECKER.)

If cows are fed at stated intervals, they will not worry for food until the time for feeding arrives. If it is then given to them in proper quantity, they will eat and lie down, chew the cud and sleep or rest contentedly until time for another feed. First give the grain mixture, and milk the cows while they are eating it. This routine is recommended because, with some cows, the milk comes more freely while they are eating that portion of their ration which has the most relish. Cured roughage should be fed after milking because it fills the air in the barn with dust. Succulent feed, like silage and roots should also be fed after milking, because of the odor that it gives. Feeding twice a day will bring better returns than more frequent and wasteful feeding. Give half the concentrate and half the roughage in the morning, and half in the evening. Cows will soon become accustomed to this routine. In the winter they should be allowed to spend the day in the stall, and for two or three hours about mid-day they should not be disturbed. Turning them out into the yard, or giving them access to a straw-stack or field of corn stalks, will cause them to shrink in milk, no matter how much or how well they may be fed in the morning and evening. No more feed should be given them than they will eat up. The mangers should be absolutely clean and free from any feed, during the day and night.

DAIRY FARMING IN EUROPE

Much Attention Is Paid to Artistic Appearance of Farms—Everything Kept Neat and Orderly.

In many sections of Europe where dairying is carried on extensively the greater part of the land is owned by men who care quite as much for beauty as for profit, in consequence of which great attention is paid to the artistic appearance of the farms, and much pride is taken in keeping everything neat and orderly. No fence corners or hedge rows are left to grow up with weeds, no machinery is allowed to stand in the fields. There is a network of winding macadamized roads lined on both sides with hedges and trees, and leading through the fields in every direction are footpaths. The heather-covered hills, vine-clad cottages and fine cattle dotting the meadows make a beautiful picture—one not soon forgotten.

Feed Your Cows Well.

"It sometimes happens that farmers are in possession of extra good cows, but not realizing the amount of feed required by cows giving a large yield they are soon allowed to shrink in milk because the feed given does not provide sufficient nutriment. While cows in good condition can, for a time, give more milk than the feed provides, by drawing upon the fat stored in the body, yet if the grain is not gradually increased as the cows lose in body weight there will soon follow an abnormal shrinkage in milk flow and also a decrease in the quality of milk yielded."

Buying Dairy Cows.

When you buy dairy cows you do not want beef animals, for they are inclined to lay on flesh instead of giving value received for their feed and care in the bucket.

Value of Alfalfa.

A ton of alfalfa hay, cut when the first few blossoms appear and cured to leave all the leaves, is equal for milk production to a ton of bran, and costs about one-third as much.

WESTERN UNION HAS PROFIT SHARING PLAN

Telegraph Company To Sell Stock To Employees. Result Of Dissolution By the Government

New York, March 21.—A profit sharing plan to benefit employees has been inaugurated by the Western Union Telegraph Company which is offering all of its men a limited amount of the company's stock. The offer is made to employees only and the company stipulates that the buyers shall not speculate in the shares.

We are forced to sell some of our stock, that which was held by the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, because of the dissolution of the two companies, brought about by the government, A. R. Brewer, treasurer of the Western Union said. We learned that our shareholders probably would not take up all the stock and rather than offer it outside we have offered it to our employees.

The men are given the option of paying cash or paying for the stock in twenty-four monthly installments.

It Lake Woman Killed By Train

Foot Was Caught Between the Ties. Companion Also Was Killed While Aiding Her

Portland, Oregon, March 22.—Mrs. Tessie Ellis of Salt Lake was almost instantly killed this afternoon by an electric train at Errol station, on the Estacada interurban line when her left foot became fastened between ties in a trestle and her companion George Michele, steward at the Oregon hotel was unable to loose her in time.

Michelle lost his life in the attempt. Mrs. Ellis fainted when she saw the train coming down upon her. Michelle strove to release her shoe and held up until it was too late for him to seek safety.

According to Mrs. A. L. Clover, a friend of Mrs. Ellis, Michelle who was married, intended to get a divorce at the fall term of court and marry Mrs. Ellis, who has been divorced from a Salt Lake physician for several years. The reason for delaying the divorce, which was suitable to both Michelle and Mrs. Michelle was to save from possible shadow the graduation of Michelle's 17 year old daughter from high school this June. The Michelles have been separated for seven years.

Mrs. Ellis, who was about 26 years of age had been living here for one year. Her sister, Mrs. Arthur Froye lives at 159 Edith street, Salt Lake City. On the train which killed Michelle and Mrs. Ellis was an inbound party of real estate excursionists.

One of the passengers said that just beyond Errol station is a half-mile straight away stretch on which the electric train was making fast time. She said that when Mrs. Ellis' shoe became entangled in the ties, Michelle stooped to release it. Mrs. Ellis looked back over her shoulder and seeing the approaching train fainted. One passenger said Michelle made no move to escape, but continued to aid Mrs. Ellis until he was killed. The motorman of the train turned off his motors in an effort to stop quickly.

Inaudible at Least.

BURGLAR IS SENT TO PRISON

Detective Long On Trail Of Bold Crook Who Posed As a Rich Bond Owner

Chicago, March 21.—When a burglar wears fine clothes and rides around with his beautiful wife in a limousine, he's a hard one to catch. Consequently the Chicago police are particularly elated today over the capture of Melville Reeves, who because of the scene of most of his robberies, has gained the sobriquet of the skyscraper burglar.

His wife, young and handsome and clever, is his partner. He attires himself in the swaggiest clothes, hires the smartest automobile, drives to the biggest skyscraper, picks out the biggest bond dealers in the building, and the game begins.

Reeves has bonds to sell, or to buy, that does not matter. He talks well, and he talks long, and while he talks he makes note of the lay of the office. Some night he returns to the skyscraper, still well dressed and driving his big auto car. With his skeleton key he enters the bond dealers office, opens the safe, helps himself to the bonds, money and jewels.

Reeves and his wife were arrested with robbing a well known bond dealer in Chicago last December charged on bonds. They were released on bonds. They continued to wear fine clothes, to drive about in their handsome motor car. But detectives were watching all the time.

When the safe of Sandusky Portland Cement Co., Cleveland, Ohio, was robbed recently the detectives got suspicious. They remembered that Melville Reeves and his wife were both out of jail. They took the trail. They arrested a dapper young man just as he stepped into a La Salle street office to dispose of Standard Cement bonds.
